September 14, 2016

(Butler, Pa) Butler County Community College (BC3) will hold an Information Session for students enrolled at DuBois Business College (DBC) on Monday, September 19 at 6:00 p.m. at BC3 @ Brockway, 1200 Wood Street, Brockway, PA. Last week, DuBois Business College announced its closing effective at the end of its current term on September 22.

“My heart goes out to the community, the faculty, staff and especially the DBC students,” Neupauer said. “We are demonstrating what community colleges as a whole do best – respond to a community need. I am confident the transition for these students coming to BC3 @ Brockway will be a smooth one.”

At the Information Session, DBC students can meet one-on-one with representatives from BC3 and get answers to questions about transferring credits and financial aid options. BC3 is in the process of developing 3-4 courses that will start in October allowing new DBC students to start at BC3 @ Brockway in the current Fall 2016 semester. BC3 will also work with current DBC students to map out a curriculum plan that aligns DBC courses with BC3 courses and programs and ensures graduation in a timely manner. The College is looking to provide new degree options for current DBC students as well.

BC3 @ Brockway serves Jefferson, Clearfield, Clarion, and Elk Counties and has grown significantly since opening in 2013. In the 2015-2016 academic year, 372 students took classes at BC3 from the four-county service area. In the current Fall 2016 semester, enrollment continues to grow with 154 students taking classes in the four-county service area. BC3 @ Brockway currently offers associate degrees in Business Management, Early Childhood Education (Pre K-4), General Studies, Psychology, and Social Work and offers first year courses for Pre-Nursing.
